The Institute of Sound and Communications Engineers

Register of members 2016

Register of members 2016

The Institute of Sound and Communications Engineers is the specialist learned society and professional body for sound and communications engineers. It was founded in 1948 and is an entirely independent institute, run by a council elected by its members.

This list represents a proportion of our members who have given us their authorisation to print their details within the ISCE Register of Members.

The information contained in this Register is for personal use of the intended recipients and should not be used, in any circumstances, for the distribution of commercial literature.

The Register will be distributed to all members of the ISCE and may be sent to anyone who contacts the ISCE for information about the services of our members.

Updated October 2016.

Standards of Practice

The ISCE provides training courses for CPD purposes and delegates receive a certificate of attendance.

While some of our courses may formally assess competency of the delegate, ISCE cannot be held liable for any problems or issues that may arise due to their practice.

As a Learned Body the ISCE does not vet its Members installations or designs, it is a requirement of our Members to ensure that they are adequately trained and insured to undertake projects and are bound by the ISCE Code of Conduct.

Notwithstanding the above, the ISCE shall fully investigate any allegations of malpractice against one of its Members in order to uphold the standards of practice within the industry. This may result in the Member being removed from the Institute.
